

Morgan Hyson's career began at the University of Maryland, where he earned his Bachelor's degree in 2010, double-majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. He went on to work as a Litigation Paralegal for several years before taking on a series of roles at a nonprofit certification body, the Institute of Hazardous Materials Management, ultimately serving as the Institute's Acting Executive Director before pursuing his Master's Degree in International Economics and International Relations full-time at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. Before completing his degree in 2020, Morgan completed internships at the U.S. Department of State and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He now works as a Fellow at Pacific Northwest National Laboratory, where he focuses on nonproliferation policy at the U.S. Department of Energy.