The Ultimate Guide to Whole-Child Safety, Wellness & Success in K-12 Schools

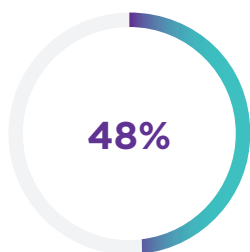

Keeping your school staff and students safe is the first step in creating a positive learning environment. However, the ever-changing landscape of safety threats and hazards combined with the complexities of state and federal safety regulations can make developing an all-encompassing safety plan an overwhelming task for any district.

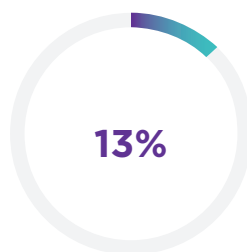

We believe schools, businesses, cultural & religious organizations, and local, state and federal governments must work better together to ensure every student feels safe – physically, socially and emotionally – within their school environment. These basic needs must be met before our children are equipped to pursue academic learning that enables them to achieve their full potential as members of our communities.

Students are feeling a lack of confidence in being protected – physically, socially and emotionally.

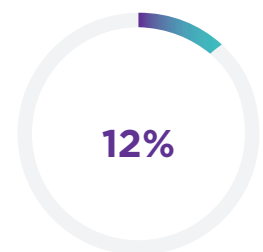

A December 2021 survey by Navigate360 & John Zogby Strategies found that:

48% of teens are thinking more today about their physical and emotional safety and wellness than they did six months ago

Only about 13% of teens have the greatest confidence that their school is spending enough time and money to keep them safe

Only about 12% of teens have the greatest confidence that their school is doing its best to create an atmosphere of emotional safety

Students Can't Reach Their Full Academic Potential Unless They Feel Safe & Supported

Navigate360's K12 safety & wellness solutions provide you with complementary, integrated and relevant tools necessary to save and enhance lives. From culture to compliance, you can detect, manage and prevent threats to your school's safety while fostering the mental health and character development of students and staff alike. Point solutions are no longer an option. This is the new standard for modern school safety, wellness and success and the only path toward zero incidents of violence on school campuses.

Let's work better - together.

School Culture & Climate

Students – and educators – are dealing with a lot these days. From living through a global pandemic that has led to learning loss and isolation to grappling with societal and economic uncertainties, members of your school community who lack the social-emotional skills necessary to navigate these stressors can fall behind academically or express signs of depression and anxiety. Addressing the social, emotional and mental safety of students and staff helps to improve academic performance and classroom behavior, and it curbs the risk of a mental health issue escalating – ultimately preventing violence to self or others.

Addressing Mental Health Problems Before They Escalate

All school leaders understand the importance of identifying and supporting students of concern to prevent escalation. However, many districts don't have the expertise or resources to develop and manage a strategy for dealing with the social, emotional and mental safety of students and staff. Navigate360 makes it easy to meet the social-emotional needs of school communities to foster a positive, safe culture of learning. Our suite of social, emotional and mental wellness solutions provides schools with the tools they need to foster a healthy, thriving learning community while identifying and managing concerning behavior.

Poor mental health among students is on the rise, and it can lead to intent to harm self or others. According to a 2019 study, almost 19% of high school-aged youth had seriously considered attempting suicide within the last year. Additionally, according to a 2019 U.S. Secret Service report titled "Protecting America's Schools," all attackers in the 41 K-12 attacks studied showed concerning behavior, and most communicated their intent to attack.

Safety Management & Preparedness

A violent critical incident or natural event leading to physical harm to students or staff is the worst-case scenario for school leaders. In today's world, it can be challenging to stay on top of evolving threats. Violence and self-harm – often stemming from mental health issues and preceded by online or in-person warning signs or threats – are on the rise due to social and economic issues.

While some threats cannot be prevented, it's critical districts prepare for the ones that can – and ultimately save lives. The mindset of “it can't happen here” is no longer an option.

Students' perception of physical safety at school is troubling. Most teens (54%) feel their schools are not prepared to respond to critical emergency incidents, while 63% say they are not confident their classmates know what to do in an emergency.

This ever-changing environment of school safety calls for a new, all-encompassing approach to preventing violence and preparing for unpreventable critical incidents such as natural disasters or extreme weather.

Prevent Violence & Prepare for Emergencies

Critical events – whether manmade or natural – are a real threat to the physical safety of your students, staff and community partners.

Emergency prevention and preparation initiatives like comprehensive emergency planning, visitor management, trauma-informed safety training, and risk assessments help schools prevent critical incidents from happening and prepare students and staff to respond when they do.

They improve response times and help first responders save more lives.

Security Audit

School security audits are used to uncover general areas that need improvement. Navigate360's security audits are ideal for districts seeking an abbreviated, cost-effective way to efficiently identify security weaknesses and implement measures to improve safety for staff and students.
