Morgan Hyson Bio:

Morgan has had a varied career across many fields and disciplines ranging from civil litigation to nuclear nonproliferation policy. A proud key chapter in this journey was five years serving in a progression of staff roles at the Institute of Hazardous Materials Management, ultimately serving as the Institute's Acting Executive Director. He left the Institute to pursue his Master's Degree, and has since continued in roles at the Departments of Agriculture, Energy and State. Morgan is an alumni of the prestigious Presidential Management Fellowship program and has been recognized for his work as a civil servant through multiple awards, including two Superior Honor Awards, among the highest given in the Department of State. He currently works in the international humanitarian space overseeing complex U.S.-funded projects and programs overseas. Morgan holds a Master's Degree in International Economics and International Relations from Johns Hopkins University, and earned his Bachelor's Degree from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Why I am running and why you should vote for me:

The last four years have been a period of many challenges facing the Institute's community of practice and the Institute itself. As the Board's Public Member, I have brought the perspective of a longtime staff member, a depth of historical knowledge of the Institute and its operations, and the eye of an experienced program officer to the Institute's endeavors and its finances. Having now been personally invested for over a decade in supporting, administering, and growing the Institute's critical programs and serving its certificant, I care deeply about IHMM's future. I would be humbled and honored by the opportunity to continue to serve this incredible and worthy mission.
